

The 20 best heated and indoor rooftops to enjoy in NYC this winter

Peak rooftop season might be on pause until next summer, but panoramic skyline views can still be enjoyed from indoor and heated rooftop spots across New York City. Cozy restaurants and bars across the five boroughs offer the perfect way to scratch that skyline itch without braving the chill of the fall and winter weather. From heated terraces to glass-enclosed lounges, here are some of the best rooftops to sip a cocktail and take in the view.

Ophelia

3 Mitchell Place, Midtown

The historic Beekman Tower's top-floor cocktail lounge remains a favorite rooftop destination for the holidays. Nestled on the 26th floor, Ophelia offers sweeping views of the East River and beyond, along with creative interpretations of classic cocktails and a thoughtful culinary menu by Chef Antelmo Ambrosio.
