23 NYC Restaurants and Pop-Up Bars Decked Out for the Holidays

Where to go in NYC for some extra-festive food and drink

by Alexandra Ilyashov and Stefanie Tuder |

The holiday season in New York City brings seriously festive ambiance in restaurants and bars that go delightfully all-out with the holiday decor. From elegant, impeccably dressed trees and wreaths to intentionally kitschy, tinsel explosions of holiday spirit, here's a range of bars and restaurants that have top-notch seasonal decorations around NYC.

Some of these establishments serve worthwhile food, but all of them are at least solid places to enjoy a celebratory cocktail or two. Ahead, 23 stops for some extra-festive food or drink this season.

Get holiday chalet vibes through this South Street seaport restaurant's extensive decorations. Expect sparkling lights, Christmas greenery, life-size reindeer families on the terrace, snow-flocked Christmas trees, two giant nutcrackers lining the entryway, and decorated wreaths. The crowd leans FiDi worker type, and the food should generally be avoided — but it's still worthy for drinks in the area.
