

19 NYC Restaurants That Have Thanksgiving Dinner Covered

Thanksgiving is a day for feasting—but if you're not keen on shuffling pots and pans around your tiny NYC apartment this year, we don't blame you. After all, COVID restrictions turned last year on its head and many of us ended up staying home for small home-cooked dinners with our pods. So go all out and let someone else dream up the Thanksgiving appetizer ideas this year.

NYC chefs are pulling out all the stops for this food-centric holiday with takeout options that bring the restaurant to you and fancy dinners in some of the city's grandest dining rooms (so long as you show proof of vaccination). There will be traditional favorites like turkey, mashed potatoes, and gravy, of course, but some restaurants are also offering stellar global and gourmet spins that make it worth tossing tradition aside. So whether you want that picture-perfect Thanksgiving spread or just want to scarf down a holiday-inspired taco or hot dog (Seriously! It's an option!), check out our list of all the best restaurants providing Thanksgiving dinner this year in NYC.

Everyone knows the best part of Thanksgiving is the leftovers, so Industry Kitchen is leaning into that notion with a holiday-inspired pizza. The pie comes topped with all the fixings: turkey, stuffing, cranberry sauce, and walnuts, and the restaurant is also offering a pumpkin cheesecake with salted caramel and toasted pepitas for Thanksgiving, alongside its standard menu.
