

Wine Of Australia

In 1788 Cpt. Arthur Phillip landed in Sydney with The First Fleet of settlers to the colony of New South Wales, bringing with him the first grape vines from Brazil and The Cape of Good Hope.

Fast forward a mere 200 years and The Commonwealth of Australia produces in excess of 100 different grape varieties from 60 designated wine regions and is the World's fourth largest exporter of wine.

Due to a resistance to the scourge of phylloxera – a pest and subsequent fungal infection that wiped out most grapevines of the old world in the late 19th century – Australia lays claim to some of the oldest vines in the world, dating back as far as 1850.

Influenced by European and Asian immigrants, Australian food & wine culture encourages innovation. Australia is at the forefront of modern winemaking techniques with many world-leading research facilities located there. The exclusive use of the screw cap is evidence of this desire to be always looking to the future.

Thanks to a few diligent importers, an ever-increasing variety of diverse Aussie wines are now available in the USA. At Burke & Wills, we are proud to offer this curated selection.

Cheers,

Tim Harris - Owner
