Who We Are

Untitled at the Whitney Museum of American Art is a contemporary American restaurant from Danny Meyer's Union Square Hospitality Group, helmed by Executive Chef Suzanne Cupps. Between the High Line and the Hudson River, Untitled occupies a vibrant, glass-enclosed space on the ground floor of the striking museum building.

Event Accommodations

Untitled happily accommodates seated and standing events in its James Beard Award-winning, Renzo Piano-designed space, which includes the light-filled dining room as well as two sunny patios. The full restaurant is available for events at any time of day, and smaller groups of 9 to 20 guests can be accommodated during regular service hours, with flexible set menus and beverage packages available.

For more information about group dining reservations and events at Untitled, contact Luis Roca Herrera at lroca@untitledatthewhitney.com or 646-647-2492.

For information about events at the Whitney Museum of American Art (available to Corporate Members), contact the Whitney's Special Events team at specialevents@whitney.org.

Group Dining Reservations

Full Restaurant Reservations

Untitled is on the ground floor of the Whitney's new downtown home, designed by world-renowned architect Renzo Piano. The restaurant sits below the building's dramatically cantilevered entrance along Gansevoort Street, at the base of the High Line. The space balances an expansive, glass façade with a poured cement floor and wood furnishings, echoing the industrial character of the neighborhood and the contemporary form of the Museum.

Capacity
