There is no better way to escape the cold than a fireside dinner. Whether you're grabbing a quick bite to eat on the Upper West Side or cocktails and appetizers on the Lower East Side, here are some of the best restaurants to enjoy delicious food beside a roaring fire.

Merakia

5 West 21st St.
New York, NY 10010

New Yorkers can escape the cold and warm up near Merakia's fireplace. Tucked in the backroom of the Greek restaurant, the white-washed brick fireplace along with the restaurant's velvet-tufted banquettes and coffered ceiling provide the perfect setting for a romantic date. The menu echoes the ambiance of the space and focuses on a rustic style of cooking where meats are grilled or cooked on spits and a stone hearth. As diners listen to the crackling of the fire, they can begin their meal with Merakia's signature Greek dips, including the tzatziki, melitzanosalata and kafteri.
