Today, Maison Olivier Leflaive controls 50 acres of vineyards in property located mainly in Puligny - Montrachet, Chassagne - Montrachet, Meursault and Pommard. In 2010, Maison Olivier Leflaive recovered ownership of the legendary vineyards they had previously leased to Domaine Leflaive. Being a grower and grape buyer enables Maison Olivier Leflaive the strength to produce wines from Côte Chalonnaise and Côte de Beaune too. The wines of Maison Olivier Leflaive are widely regarded for their precision, elegance and finesse. Please try a bottle from our curated selection.

Produttori del Barbaresco

“Produttori del Barbaresco is not only a winery - it is a way of life. It started thanks to the vision of a priest in a little village, a collaboration between friends and families who understood that together they could make something greater than what they could ever hope to achieve as individuals”.

Aldo Vacca, graduated in 1982 with a degree in agriculture and then earned a master's, from the famed program at University of California, Davis. Aldo spent fifteen years of his career at the side of Angelo Gaja, for whom he was a valued assistant in all aspects of the Gaja winery. After leaving Angelo Gaja (they are still friends) Aldo became the director of Produttori del Barbaresco in 1998, helping build one of the greatest wine cooperatives in the world .

Besides wine Aldo has a soft spot for Mozart and racing mountain bikes. The story is great but the wines are better! Vic

Vietti

Located in the heart of the Langhe Hills at the top of the small town of Castiglione Falletto, founded in the late 1800's by Carlo Vietti. Today my good friends Luca and Elena Currado Vietti are in charge of all aspects of the estate. They have contributed to the success of Vietti wines through out the world. Today Vietti is considered one of the very best Italian wine estates.

I had the pleasure of visiting and staying on the Estate several times over the past 12 years. The work that Luca and Elena do on a day to day basis is astonishing. They saying goes "hard work pays off", don't ask me read the critics or simply taste a bottle.

Oddero Poderi e Cantine

During the Winter of 2002 I met Isabella and Mariacristina Oddero at a Barolo tasting in New York City. This was the first time we had met but not the first time I had tasted their historic wines. Immediately upon meeting I knew I had to visit the winery and vineyards in La Morra one of the villages of Barolo. That spring while traveling thru Piemonte I visited the winery and was their guest for a few days. I immediately learned that Oddero was rooted in tradition preserving the essence of what their vineyards yielded. But what really struck me was the passion and energy that Cristina and Isabella showed in their work. They were not forced to be here, they made a conscience choice to continue the work of their family as sixth and seventh generations making wine at Oddero. When you taste these wines think of a women's touch, tradition, elegance, soft and balanced. I am happy that we could curate these wines for you to enjoy

Ornellaia

Shortly after Axel Heinz became the winemaker at Ornellaia in 2005 we had a chance to meet as I was spending the summer in Bolgheri where the winery is located. Several years later by chance Axel was doing a seminar on Ornellaia wines in New Jersey and they need someone to cook for the event, they called me. I cooked a simple wild boar ragu over white polenta to pair with these spectacular wines. The saying in Italy is, "what grows together goes together". The wines and ragu went perfect together and Axel and my friendship was formalized. Today because of that friendship we are happy to have a vertical of these iconic wines for you to taste with our award-winning cuisine.

Tenuta San Guido Sassicaia

As a guest of Nicolò Incisa Della Rocchetta to the Tenuta San Guido Estate in the summer of 2008, I was invited to sit in on the assemblage of the Sassicaia 2009 vintage. It was myself, Nicolò Incisa, Carlo Paoli and Sebastiano Rosa sitting around a table in and off estate building tasting the samples, (provo 1, provo 2, provo 3 and provo 4). Its was from those 4 samples that the final blend was chosen. The rest is sworn to secrecy.

The vintage was 1985 that took the wine world by surprise when Sassicaia was unanimously voted "Best Red Wine in The World". It changed the perception of Italian wine and single handily put quality Italian wines on the map. Vic

Tenuta delle Terre Nere

Marc De Grazia is an Icon of Italian wine. In 1980 as a hobby, Marc created Marc De Grazia Selections, by the early 2000's he was responsible for importing some of the best Italian wine into the United States. Few people have been more important in raising the awareness, quality and identity of the wines from Italy than Marc.

Today as De Grazia imports thrives, Marc and his wife tend to their winery on Mount Etna. The critics, credit Mark with putting the wines of Mt. Etna on the map. Marc told me recently, "in those places where it is the most difficult to make wine you have the opportunity to produce great wine". I call the wines of Etna wine Italys version of Burgundy. The tones, temperament, minerality and body are reflective of the higher altitude vineyards of Burgundy. Vic
