THE WINES OF SOUTHOLD FARM + CELLAR

The story of Reagan and Carey Meador is certainly an interesting one. The couple began making wine on the North Fork of New York's Long Island in 2012. Although self taught and new to viticulture, the Meadors found they had a natural talent for making interesting, delicious wines with esoteric varietals. Having found success and seeking to improve thier facilities they set out to build a new facility on thier farm, but due to some archaic zoning laws the town of Southold forbid them from doing so. Left with no way to make sell thier wines they decided to pack up, their sell thier farm and move down to Reagan's home state of Texas. Now, settled in the hills outside Fredericksburg, Texas the couple has started to experiment with new varietals and terroir. So for the first time in Texas, we can offer New York wines made by a Texan winery. It doesn't hurt that they are delicious.
