

Where to Go and What to Eat During Halloween Weekend

The city's yearly marathon of sort-of-spooky, orange-and-black-themed events is about to begin. Halloween is upon us, and despite a smaller showing last year, restaurants and bars are almost back in full swing in 2021. Beyond the pumpkin-spiced specials, we've rounded up this list of actually good activities to help celebrate Halloween weekend, including themed dinners, masked (not that kind) dance parties, nighttime food markets, and one very special barbacoa cookout.

Sip glow-in-the-dark cocktails at a silent disco

Where: Pier 15 by Watermark

When: October 29

It's meant to be eerily quiet. Pier 15 will be transformed into a giant silent disco from 7 p.m. to midnight. Guests will wear headphones that let them switch channels between three live DJs while they sip glow-in-the-dark cocktails and horror flicks flash in the background. Too embarrassed to dance with an LED headset? Just put on a costume. Tickets on Eventbrite are $25 per person.
