"THE SEXIEST BAR IN TOWN"

The Campbell Apartment in Grand Central Station has long been a secret spot for the stars, welcoming everyone from Frank Sinatra to George Clooney. Proprietor Scott Gerber brought in interior designer Randy Kemper to refurbish the space that has been rechristened the Campbell. "As soon as you enter, the sense of history is palpable," Kemper said. He has big plans for the space; he hopes to bring in a professional "burglar" to crack open the massive safe in the bar's enormous fireplace to see what's inside. At the opening were jeweler Lisa Jackson, who just opened a pop-up in Copious Row in Southampton, and designer Tony Ingrao, who called it "the sexiest bar in town." Thecampbellnyc.com ♦ a little bit she will end up with "that same look." In the end, she decides to go ahead with both procedures, saying "it couldn't get much worse." Hoffman chose Dr. Sherrell Anton, the surgeon said to have worked on Anna Winour, Caroline Herrera and Catherine Denure, to wield the scalpel. Dr. Anton suggested that Hoffman also have a chin implant, but she demurred.

At the end of the movie, she shares how she feels about the procedure. "I'm thrilled," she says, "but I should have had the chin implant." You can judge the results yourself by seeing her on Broadway in Charlie and the Chocolate Factory.

BREAKFAST AT TIFFANY'S, AND DINNER AT LINCOLN CENTER

The Philharmonic screened Breakfast at Tiffany's with a full orchestra and a large chorus performing Henry Mancini's Academy Award-winning score. Mancini once said, "It took me a long time to figure out what Holly Golightly was all about. One night after midnight I was still trying. I don't drink much, but I was sipping. And it came to me. I wrote 'Moon River' in half an hour."

Among those donning pearls and sunglasses for the fan night were Henry Mancini, 175th Anniversary Chair Daisy Soros, Liz Peck, Mary Niederlander, the
