This Life Is Golden

A LITTLE BIT OF EVERYTHING, FOR THE GIRL WHO WANTS IT ALL

9 NYC Rooftops & Terraces To Visit This Month

If there's anything we've learned from my years living in this city, it's that rooftop season is when it all happens. Winter is for hibernating, fall is for perfect fashion and pumpkin everything, spring is for garden parties and fancy salads, but summer is for rooftops, beach drinking and new experiences. Summer is the season when NYC becomes Miami – only better. Check out some of our favorite rooftops around the city and start the season off right. After all, you can never go wrong with a bikini body and a chilled Caipirinha.

The Roof at The Viceroy Central Park

Viceroy Central Park, rooftop, 124 W 57th St, New York, NY 1001

The elegant nocturnal paradise of The Roof at the Viceroy is the epitome of New York City nightlife. As the sun sets, the alluring lounge and outdoor terrace booms with the city's glowing energy and gives guests access to soaring views of Central Park at midnight. Lavishly designed by Roman and Williams, the Hamptons yacht-like aesthetic of the VIP lounge is apparent in the detailing: brass accents, custom walnut-and-leather sofas and thoughtfully curated images by famed photographer Dalton Portella. Of course, the expansive drink menu by Gerber Group is – as always – the perfect combination of classic and modern cocktails that highlight market fresh ingredients. All comes together with an array of delicious small plates and a stylish ambiance.
