NYC rooftop bars and restaurants to visit now

Embrace blue-skied, increasingly warm days by supersizing where you enjoy that cocktail or meal. This city you call home is filled with rooftop bars and restaurants with indoor areas to keep you warm while you enjoy breathtaking views.

While others are paying for the vistas via observation decks, you'll be overlooking New York City for the price of a beverage — or at least leaving with a full belly. Enjoy, and don't forget to take a sky-high selfie.

On warmer days, hang out by the pool on the larger of two outdoor terraces at Hotel Indigo LES's 15th-floor bar and restaurant. (Ideally with a signature Mr. Purple tequila and cranberry cocktail in hand.) On chillier days, the indoor artist-loft space offers the same downtown Manhattan skyline view, as well as a broad selection of wines, a few beers and bites like beef sliders, a tomato flatbread and a buttermilk fried chicken sandwich. 180 Orchard St., Manhattan, mrpurplenyc.com,
