10 Selfie Stick-Worthy Rooftop Bars You Need to Hit up This Spring

'Tis the season to drink on a rooftop! The sun is shining, the birds are singing, and we want to get our buzz on while we look for Spiderman potentially swinging through the skyscrapers of Manhattan.

Okay maybe that is my personal fantasy. But I think we can all agree, the best part of the arrival of warm weather is the ability to drink outside again.

Highlights include a "secret garden" bar, a terrace with an actual, dead ass swimming pool, and on top of a famous art museum.

Just try not to drop your selfie sticks over the edge. Nothing ruins spring fever like a manslaughter charge.

5. The Roof (124 West 57th Street, 29th Floor)

This bar is on, well, the roof of the Viceroy Central Park, and offers one of the best rooftop bar views in the city in our humble opinion.

Feel like you're a swanky character from Mad Men while sipping a manhattan and taking in the '60s luxury airliner aesthetic in the indoor and outdoor lounge, with stunning views of Central Park.
