ABOUT

Beer - One of the world's oldest prepared beverages, beer is brewed from cereal grains, most commonly from malted barley, though wheat, corn, and rice are also used. Most modern beer is brewed with hops, which add bitterness and other flavors, and act as a natural preservative and stabilizing agent.

Sake - Born from the meticulous brewing traditions of Japan, sake is crafted from polished rice, water, koji mold, and yeast. Unlike beer, it doesn't rely on hops but showcases the pure essence of rice and fermentation. Its flavors range from light and floral to rich and complex, offering a versatile drinking experience. Enjoyed chilled, at room temperature, or gently warmed.

GIN & AKVAVIT

ABOUT

Deriving its predominant flavor from juniper berries, gin is one of the broadest categories of spirit. From its earliest origins in the Middle Ages, the drink has evolved from an herbal medicine to an object of commerce in the spirits industry. Gin was developed based on the older Flemish liquor, genever, and became popular in Great Britain the late 1600s.

TEQUILA & MEZCAL

ABOUT

Tequila, originating in the 16th century, is an agave-based distilled spirit produced around Tequila, Jalisco. Mezcal, with a longer history, is made in various Mexican regions, including Oaxaca. Unlike tequila, mezcal's production often involves roasting agave hearts in underground pits, giving it a distinctive smoky flavor. While tequila is closely tied to Jalisco and the blue agave, mezcal showcases a diverse and ancient Mexican heritage.

RUM & CACHACA

ABOUT

Rum, rhum, and cachaça all hail from sugarcane but have distinctive production methods and flavor profiles. Rum, widespread in the Caribbean and Latin America, uses molasses or sugarcane juice, resulting in a diverse array of styles with notes ranging from bold to refined. Rhum, like French rhum agricole from places like Martinique and Guadeloupe, distinguishes itself by using fresh sugarcane juice, giving it a unique grassy and vegetal character. Cachaça, Brazil's pride, primarily relies on fresh sugarcane juice and offers a vibrant and fruity profile, commonly enjoyed in the Caipirinha cocktail.
