NEW YORK CITY — Maison Madison a new French-inspired dining and cocktail destination recently opened in Battery Park City.

Founded by hospitality entrepreneurs Abraham Merchant and James Belakh, Maison Madison's concept is inspired by timeless Parisian salons and the energy of modern New York.

The venue will also introduce Friends of Maddie, an exclusive membership community symbolized by a signature brass key, offering preferred access, curated experiences, insider invitations, and personalized hospitality. A membership waitlist is currently available ahead of opening.

The culinary program is led by Executive Chef Antelmo Ambrosio.

Standout menu items include French Onion Sliders with caramelized onions and Comté; Million Layer Potatoes & Caviar with crispy potato pavé and crème fraîche; and Escargot à la Bourguignonne with garlic-parsley butter and toasted baguette.

The beverage program is led by Beverage Director Amir Babayoff.

Signature cocktails include Le Jardin Impérial with Oka vodka, lychee, hibiscus, yuzu, and sakura; Café Noir Martini with Cazcanes Reposado, espresso, Borghetti, peanut, and amaro; Midnight in Paris with Hibiki Japanese Whisky, pear, spice, and falernum; and Cuvée No. 12 with The Macallan 12, Spanish brandy, Cocchi, amaro, and apricot.

Maison Madison is currently open at 301 S End Ave, Battery Park City.
