

DINING

21 Fall-Inspired Espresso Martinis To Keep An Eye Out For

Amber Love Bond Contributor

I am a Miami-based food + cocktail writer.

Follow

Oct 11, 2022, 08:00am EDT

0

Listen to article 11 minutes

Beso de Espresso at Beaker & Gray in Miami, FL BEAKER & GRAY

There's no doubt that espresso martinis continue to be one of the trendiest cocktails around these days. Naturally as the seasons change, bartenders around the country are creating versions of the caffeinated cocktail filled with flavors of fall — from the obvious pumpkin and cinnamon to warm whiskey and smokey mezcal in place of the usual vodka, there's so many ways to turn this cult classic cocktail into one that's ideal for sipping all autumn long.

Here are 21 fall-inspired espresso martinis you should be ordering around the country.

Chai Jennings Java Martini at Lumin Skybar in Columbus, Ohio

Lumin Skybar's espresso martini CHRISTOPHER HEIDEL

On the newly debuted fall cocktail menu at Lumin Skybar is a Chai Jennings Java Martini made with chai-infused Watershed Vodka (locally distilled in Ohio), coffee liquor, vanilla, and java concentrate from local Jennings Coffee Roasters.

Beso De Espresso from Beaker & Gray in Miami, Florida

This version combines cold brew with orange cordial and candied pistachios making for an aromatic and nutty drink that's perfect for Fall sipping. "The Beso de Espresso is the ideal pick-me-up with two hits of espresso—one from the housemade cold brew espresso and one from the punchy Mr. Black Cold Brew Espresso Liqueur. The autumnal essence comes from the combination of orange citrus, pistachio, and pandan. Finally, Ketel One vodka ties everything together to warm (or cool down) the soul in these chilly (or balmy) Fall months," says co-owner Ben Potts.

MORE FOR YOU

Patrick Byrne Of Overstock Fame Says He Was Involved In Monthslong Effort To Overturn 2020 Election