The reason that Luigi's is celebrating their 25th year is quite apparent. This is a restaurant that hits all the right notes (and I am not just referencing Don Anthony's crooning). Superb service, comforting food, passionate ownership, and an atmosphere that makes each and every visit here feel like a special occasion.

Much like the Don's setlist, the hit's just kept coming. Every small plate was delicious, but I would single out the pizza with prosciutto and hot honey and the crispy arancini - delicious! I think we were all taken by surprise when trays of pasta and chicken came out. I was going to pass, but the comments by my table-mates on how amazing the chicken was broke down my resistance.

I tried 2 of the signature cocktails, both the Hendricks and the Negroni were so well balanced and complex. I don't have a clue what velvet falernum is but it made magic happen in the glass, and the strawberry infusion in the negroni was genius. Unfortunately they affected my coordination a bit, as I'm told I was kicking left when everyone else was kicking right. Thankfully, I noticed that I was edited out of the videos posted of our kickline!

I have to start off by saying that this place is on my list to come back to. When you walk in the ambience automatically set the scene of your night. The lighting was dim and intimate. The seating was spacious where you're not on top of everyone. The food that was served(meatballs, rice balls, pizza, shrimp tempura, crab cakes, ravioli, and beef stroganoff) were all tasty. The service from the waiters were phenomenal. They were consistent with making sure you were okay, asking if you needed anything, and also recommending the drinks that they thought I would like. It's very rare that I receive exquisite service from a waiter. We also had live entertainment who sang oldies such as frank sinatra. The evening I would describe it was romantic lol even though I was with my good friend Shana J. Who invited me to this yelp elite event. This place is an inviting, comforting, and joyous environment.
