Laherte Frères À CHAVOT

Jean-Baptiste Laherte set up the family estate in 1889, planting most of the vines in the village of Chavost, which was to become Chavot.

The estate gradually grew over generations, and covers today, over 11 hectares through the Champagne region.

The sixth and seventh generations are now working together to create wines that are just like them - pure, sincere and authentic. They share their experience and combine their efforts to make the most of this beautiful heritage.

David's & Kevin Hart's first encounter with Laherte:

Life has a way of catching us off guard, and it's even more momentous when it happens over a glass of wine. A particular memory stayed with us during one of the most impactful glasses we ever consumed. It all happened at La Grande Crèmerie, a natural wine bar in Paris back in 2013. There were many liquids flowing that evening. A glass of Champagne was poured and tasted.

Life paused as reality hit.

There was surely electricity in this juice—energy, precision, verve. Minerality hit us over the head. A true testament to the caliber of Laherte was the moment Gordon Hue—owner of WineCraft, tasted this same wine later on.

With his first sip, he looked at Kevin, eyes wide—
“You did good, kid. You did really good.”
