New York City is the perfect place for a luxurious weekend getaway. From Michelin-starred restaurants to five-star hotels, New York has a bit of everything. But with so many available options, it can be challenging to know where to go and what to get up to. That's why we've put this guide together to help you create the perfect luxury weekend in New York City.

Brush Shoulders with the Stars

There are places you can visit to spot the city's celebrities and enjoy some good food. Stars like Rihanna Cardi B have been seen enjoying chicken satays in Philippe Chow – a restaurant in the Meatpacking District of the city, which also has a sister restaurant in the Upper East Side.

Philippe Chow is heavily inspired by the traditional restaurants of Beijing, offering its guests all the classic dishes you would find on a Chinese menu, including the famous tableside carved giant Peking duck. Looking for a tippie to accompany your meal? The wine cellar located here is home to lots of unique drink options.
